Contents

List of Figures and Tables vi

Acknowledgements xvi

Margarita Sánchez Romero

Foreword xix

António Carvalho

Preface xxi

Primitiva Bueno Ramírez and Jorge A. Soler Díaz

Presentation xxiv

Chapter 1 The Figurines of Late Iberian Prehistory 1

1.1. What we call figurines. 1
1.2. Schematic art and other graphic expressions contemporary to the figurines 4
1.3. Should the figurines be called Idols? 6
1.4. Daughters of the sun. 7

Chapter 2 Thought and Practice for a State of Art of Human Figurines in Iberia 11

2.1. Hypotheses and objectives. 12
2.2. Fragmentary Archaeologies in the Construction of Symbols of Late Prehistory. 16

Chapter 3 Women's Bodies in Portable Art from the Palaeolithic to Late Prehistory in Europe 21

3.1. The first female images 21
3.2 Figurines in post-glacial Europe 26
a. Centre and North. 26
b. Atlantic 31
c. Mediterranean 32
3.3. Early Neolithic figurines in the Iberian Peninsula. Between bones and clay. 35

Chapter 4 Typologies as a Product of Iberian Historiography in the 19th and First Half of the 20th Century 38

4.1. Some guidelines for understanding the typologies of Iberian figurines. 38
4.2. Louis Siret, compiler of the typologies of figurines between the late 19th and early 20th century. 39
4.3. "Idols" in the 1920s and 1930s. The role of Henri Breuil. 48
4.4. The expanded register: The mid-20th century and the work of Georg and Vera Leisner. 55
4.5. Pilar Acosta´s typology of the "idols" of schematic art. 63
4.6. The "Hispanic Bronze I idols". María José Almagro Gorbea´s typology. 66

Chapter 5 Human Shapes for Social Research 75

5.1. Building societies. Iberian Historiography between the 20th and the 21st century 75
5.2. Territorial identities. Gender identities. Social identities. 79
5.3. The "impact" of the Malagón "idol" and La Pijotilla series. V. Hurtado´s typology 81

Chapter 6 Progress in the Knowledge of Geometric Shapes In the Iberian Figurines 87

6.1. Northeast Iberia. 87
6.2. The characteristic figuration of the East of the Iberian Peninsula: Southeast and East. 89
6.3. Plaques and "tritriangulars" in Western Iberia 100
6.4. Cylinders, betyls and other related figurines in Western Iberia 110
6.5. Phalanges, long bones, ivory and gold pieces in Western Iberia. 115
6.6. Northwest Iberia. 119

Chapter 7 Anthropomorphic Expression in Clay 122

Chapter 8 Anthropomorphic Figurines from Southwest Iberia 129

Chapter 9 Summary of Human Geometry and Ideomorphus Portable Objects 132

9.1. List of symbolic artefacts since Siret. The Bibliographic Register of Denominations (RBD). 132
9.2. Geometries of human bodies. 139
9.3. General bases for the geometrical systematisation of Iberian figurines. Portable anthropomorphic figuration. 139
9.4. The Human Figurines (FH). 141
9.5. Geometric Anthropomorphic Figurines (FAG) 144
9.5.1. Composite Geometric Anthropomorphic Figurines (FAG/C). 146
9.5.2. Simple Geometric Anthropomorphic Figurines (FAG/S). 154
9.6. Portable ideomorphic objects (FX) 160

Chapter 10 Crafts, Workshops and Functionalities 167

10.1. The manufacture of clay. 167
10.2. Bonework. 173
10.3. Stonework. 180
10.4. Colour selections and artificial applications. 187

Chapter 11 Geographies and Contexts of Figurines in Late Iberian Prehistory 190

11.1. Portable images in Western Iberia. 191
11.2. Portable images in Eastern and Southeastern Iberia 199
11.3. Deposits in population and aggregation facilities. 205
11.4. Funerary deposits. 211

Chapter 12 People and Small Human Bodies 217

12.1 Positions and sizes of human bodies. 217
12.2. Geometries of human bodies. 224
12.3. Garments, hairstyles, adornments 227
12.4. Interacting with figurines: reusing, transferring, recycling, fragmenting 231

Chapter 13 Combining Human Images. Figurines in the Iberian Post-Glacial Art 234

13.1. Dates and contexts for figurines in parietal schematic art 235
13.2. Dates and contexts for figurines in Megalithic art 240
13.3. Territories of Neolithic and Chalcolithic groups. Exhibitions of the past and language of ancestors. 243

Chapter 14 The Daughters of the Sun, Testimony of the Social Relations and Connectivities in Late Iberian Prehistory 250

14.1. Figurines in Iberia. 250
14.2. Historiographical trajectories and women in Iberian Prehistory. 253
14.3. Portability, workshops and circuits of women's bodies. Agency and fluidity between everyday and funerary aspects. 257
14.4. A broadened interpretation of portable figurines in Iberia. 264

Chapter 15. An Exceptional Legacy 269

15.1. The preservation of the legacy and compilation of a transnational catalogue 269
15.2. Portable figurines as a less protected ensemble than parietal representations. 273
15.3. Intangible objects and stories. Proposals for a per se valorisation of the anthropomorphic figurative ensemble. 277

Bibliography 280